Bible
Reading
Tips

Here's how it works:

Read one chapter from each list every day—10 chapters in total—bookmark the places where you left off (bookmarks provided on the last page) and pick it back up the next day. At the end of a book, move on to the next one. When you reach the end of a list, simply start it over again. At this pace, you'll read through both testaments several times in a year.

Get the most out of scripture:

Each list is made up of the different biblical genres so you'll get a complete flyover of the Bible every time you open it. Because the lists vary in length, every day presents itself with a new set of chapters. What's unique about this plan is that you can go a lifetime through it and never read the same set of chapters twice.

Avoid distraction:

I know it seems a little daunting at first to read 10 chapters a day, but remember this plan is designed for you spend more time in scripture rather than on it. While both have their place, with this plan you need not worry about jotting down extensive notes or trying to remember every detail. If a passage doesn't make sense, just move on. Read as quickly as your comprehension will allow. Soon the scriptures will begin to commentate on themselves and you'll understand the Word more clearly. Happy reading.
